The beautiful Scarlett Letter dances at the Monday Night Tease Holiday Show, on Monday, December 22.

We can't believe we missed the recent Muppet-themed burlesque show put on by those crafty minds behind the long-running Monday Night Tease. Famous for theme nights with a very outlandish bent (in addition to very beautiful, old-school burlesque moves) the Monday Night Tease crew has taken on Tarantino films (including routines saluting "Pulp Fiction" -- the mind reels) and other subjects that makes one pause and wonder if a burlesque show can go there.

Oh, they can, and they will, and the holidays are up next. On Monday, December 22, Scarlett Letter, Amity Veil, Carolina Moon and more delightful dancers bring a dash of spice to seasonal routines (do they make feathered boas in tinselly red and green? We're guessing yes...). Pancake juggling is also promised -- yes, pancake juggling -- and the hearty singing of carol-type songs. Sounds like the stage equivalent of an extra shot of rum in our egg nog for sure.
